  - a broad spectrum of students from a variety of majors and interests; or
  - a focused and highly specialized major with strong departmental support for, and student interest in, the specific program theme.
- A thematic focus that is relevant to the location of the site abroad and can utilize distinctive local physical, cultural and academic resources.
- An enthusiastic and dedicated faculty leader(s) who can successfully promote the program to students starting 9-12 months prior to the program start date.

Proposal Process: Faculty who are interested in proposing a customized or faculty-led program with GEO are encouraged to complete the Customized and Faculty-Led Proposal Form along with the Campus Approval Form.
